What is the objective of operational excellence?: Achieving optimal productivity, quality, and efficiency in an organization's operations is the goal of operational excellence. The objective of an Operational Excellence Consultant is to meet business objectives and provide customers with superior value by streamlining processes, removing waste, and improving overall performance. The consultant aims to increase profitability, decrease expenses, and streamline operations by putting continuous improvement methodologies like Lean Six Sigma into practice. To maintain long-term success, they also put a lot of effort into developing an innovative and accountable culture. The ultimate goal of operational excellence is to give the company a competitive edge, spur growth, and make sure it can continue to respond and adjust to the ever-changing market.
